

British Naval Waterplane Over Fleet Patrolling the English Channel. Besides Keeping the Warships Informed of the Movements of the Enemy These Hydro-Aeroplanes Are Able to Detect the Presence of Submarines. They Cannot Be Used, However, During Stormy Weather.

British Barque Supposed to Have Been Sunk by a German Mine in the North Sea. In Spite of England's Powerful Navy British Shipping May Suffer as Greatly from the Present War as America's Did During the Civil War. Hundreds of Merchantmen Have Already Been Sent to the Bottom.